

ing with his property, we may conclude that "coming events cast their shadows before."

And yet another Irishman, and a genial one to boot, is to be found at "Clonbourn Park," the adjoining property, which estate is owned by Mr. Daniel Kenny, who is one of the safest men in the district, although everyone seems to be prosperous here; but the cause may be found in the fact that all brought capital with them. Mrs. Kenny's father, the late Mr. Keedy, was well known throughout the Goulburn Valley in Victoria, and indeed over the whole of that colony as one of the greatest friends of the Church and the priests administering her doctrines. Mrs. Kenny, who is an accomplished lady herself, is also getting her family well-educated through the medium of competent governesses and tutors. Clonbourn Park is a good property, and this year Mr. Kenny has 600 acres under wheat, which, at the time of my visit, was the best crop I saw out this way.

num
that
furt
hand
trict
P. C
as th
tion
P
and who
near giant
ing
He
claim
ther
ness
who
by t
farm